We want to share friendly vibes within us, and with whoever reads us. Despite research being a competitive race by essence, a cooperative attitude is what guide us as a whole.	Collaborativity			Co
All our promoted and produced contents will be released with open standards, with the public domain and-or with a free culture and-or free software licence conditions.	Free culture			Dif
Stands shouldn't have been already falsified, and they should always be open to be reviewed so key questions made to them have to be replied and criticisms documented	Rigourosity			Hay una fina config
Our phrasings have to be the more easily understood by the general public. More complex quotes reaffirming the stands are to be welcomed	Simplicity
Expressions should be open to be tunned with whatever other expressive mean, i.e. transmedia, multisensorial and poethical aesthetics are very welcomed	Beautiful
Our productions should be open to be enriched the most peer-to-peer posible, we should develop strategic tools that could help theorists and researchers in this way.	Crowdsourcing	< ComunidadVit	talismo Axiomas>	Explicabilidad
While we shouldn't corporate all practical tools we individually want to develop, at least we should leave open for debate all practical ways for our community to thrive.	Decentralization
We should develop aggregators with publications of researchers, and update or fork inventories of related resources that pursue our aims	Aggregating
We want this community to thrive and have the highest positive impact in society. We could have our own confort zones and affinity groups, but this community should be pursue constant updating and membership infinitiness	Ambition
While we see vitalist as a holistic theory, we can't expect in the short term to specify an integrality of practices within a natural law of universal categories, although we should help those developments in some way, yet to be further debated and specified, since they are our more thrilling challenge that as brave community we should not refuse to face.
